WHISKY WAS THE CAUSE

John Barleycorn Landed Several Victims in the Police Court.

OWNERSHIP OF OHIOKENS

Two Neighbors Disputed It and Judge Kimball Was the Empire—Some Interesting Testimony on the Power of Hearing Brought Out—Minor Cases Upstairs and Down.

Rainy weather seems to have a quieting effect, both on the disorderlies and those who are curious to see the vagrants handed by the police court. There were only eleven in the dock, all told, to-day, and two in the audience.

The list was headed by an old-timer, George Stewart, an habitual drunkard. The officer spoke a good word for him and he got off easy. He had just finished a fifteen-day sentence in the workhouse and got out last Tuesday.

"Wednesday he was heavily drunk again," said the officer. "I have known him for five years, and he has been getting worse and worse. But he has promised me and the sergeant that if he gets off with a light sentence this time he would join the Joads and quit drinking."

"Well, that's worth a trial, anyhow. But we have better keep him in until he gets sobered up. I'll make it fifteen days again and give him a chance to reform," said his honor.

Joseph Holland, a colored man, was then charged with being drunk and disorderly. The officer who made the arrest said at this time that he had seen Holland in the street and sent him home both times, and he was getting more and more intoxicated as the hours rolled on, and finally ran up against the policeman about 11:30 p. m., roaring drunk and profane.

HE FELT AGGRAVED. "This time I pulled him in and he fought me and my partner all the way to the station house."

"Step around here Holland," said the court. "What have you to say?"

Joseph, who looked as if he had a deep brown taste in his mouth, staggered up to the stand and striking an attitude of injured innocence said:

"It is a well-known fact, sah, dat dese two men are always waylayin' me. Dese two is Dutchmen and I isn't a Dutchman, and dey's got it in fer me."

"Well, what were you drinking for last night?"

"Drinking? Drinking, did you say? I was jes' comin' along 'tween two lumber piles, an' dese two Dutchmen was waylayin' fer me behind de wood."

"I guess you had better go down for fifteen days. It isn't 'Dutchman' that is bothering you, but whiskey," said the judge.

Lillie Banks got into an altercation with Annie Toyle in Brooks' court, and if needed the assistance of the police to straighten matters out, so the officer on that beat thought.

Annie accused Lillie of saying that she (Annie) had stolen her money. Annie and Lillie live opposite each other, and, happening both to step out of their front doors at the same time yesterday, had it out in regard to the children.

QUESTION OF CHICKENS. Annie then had Lillie arrested, but Lillie proved herself otherwise a good woman, through Lawyer Jones' assistance and ex-Governor Holland's put in, and his honor took her personal bonds. The main trouble with Annie was that she brought a witness to Lillie's alleged bad language who didn't seem to be present at all at the time, although she knew all about it.

"Where were you when this fight was going on?" asked the judge.

"Where was I? I was in my back do', I was."

"This occurred in front of the houses," said counsel.

"Yes, sir, of course it did," said Annie. "Who are you, anyhow?" asked the court.

"I takes in washin' an' ironin', I does, an' I tells de truth, too."

"Well, how could you see and hear this if you were in your back door?"

"Please kindly understand me 'xactly, I wouldn't come up here and be before dis court, an' I nuss' tell de truth, 'dred I must."

"That well-to-do step-back of Judge Kimball 'Take that woman's personal bonds,' he added.

A crap shooting quartet were next lined up and pleaded guilty to the charge. John Smith, Frank Brown, George Crosby, and Lewis Graham had a little game last Sunday.

CRAP-SHOOTERS' FATE. The officer broke up the game at the time and only caught one of the boys. He has been looking for the gang ever since, and last night hauled in four more.

Neither one of them wanted to say anything, and they got the usual fine of $10 or thirty days.

A nicely dressed white woman was then found sitting in the dock.

NO REAL CAUSE FOR ALARM

Physicians Declare That Typhoid Fever Is Not Epidemic.

Water Supply Responsible for the Cases That Exist, But They Are Not Abnormally Numerous.

The fact cannot be denied that there are at this time more cases of typhoid fever here than last year, but the situation is believed to be far from alarming.

At Providence Hospital there are now under treatment twenty-two cases of typhoid, as compared with practically none at the same time last year. At Garfield Hospital there are nineteen cases as against ten on the same date of 1894.

Statements have been credited to Health Officer Woodward that typhoid is now epidemic in this city, and that rigid sanitary measures are necessary to prevent serious consequences. It has been found impossible, however, to verify these statements.

Dr. Woodward left for New York last night to be gone several days, and it was impossible to learn the facts. In order to obtain medical knowledge upon the subject of typhoid fever, a number of the cases of prominent physicians.

Dr. S. C. Busey said: "I do not regard typhoid fever as epidemic here, but there are more cases than at this time of year. I regard the cause as defective and insufficient sewerage, inadequate water supply and polluted water. I do not think there is occasion for alarm if drinking water and milk are boiled. Quite a number of the cases of fever were contracted outside the city."

Dr. Stuart, U. S. A., said: "There is not more typhoid fever here than usual at this time of year. I believe the water supply is responsible for what exists, and what filtration would prevent it. I have seen several cases; only one fatal. I do not regard the sewer system as responsible for the condition of affairs, but the general water supply, which should be subjected to filtration."

Dr. Henry Kroeger said: "Judging from my experience, typhoid fever is not epidemic. I have had only one case, that contracted in the suburbs, and have never seen so little as the type had several severe cases of remittent fever. I think Washington, for its size, will compare favorably with any city in the Union as far as the sewerage system is concerned, needing extension, however, as the city grows."

George Byrd Harrison reported "no cases."

Dr. James Young reported "no cases."

Dr. McArdle said: "I do not consider typhoid fever epidemic here. I have no cases; have questioned other professional associates, who say they have none. Think the fever in the city is due to bad sewerage, insufficient water supply, contaminated wells and want of proper supervision of the dairy farms. Think the sewer system is in need of extension and improvement."

INVESTIGATING THE CHARGES. Supt. Tracey Will Shift the Alleged Ambulance Negligence.

Superintendent Tracey has commenced an investigation of the cases of Mrs. Mary Woody, of No. 1228 Princeton street, Mount Pleasant, who was taken suddenly ill on the corner of Fourteenth and Park streets about 8:30 last evening, and who died at the residence of her mother, Mrs. W. C. Corcoran, 1228 Princeton street.

The woman was finally taken to Garfield Hospital on an exhausted condition. A partial investigation of the affair shows that the police ambulance was not summoned, and Superintendent Frank states that had it been, the result would have been immediately answered.

The telephone blotter at headquarters contains an entry to the effect that the ambulances of both the Emergency and Freedman's hospitals.

THEIR RECORDS ON FILE

Excise Board Secures a Sample From Every City Bar.

TO BE CHEMICALLY TESTED

Details of Purchase and Other Data Accompany Each Sample—They Will Be Used to Prevent the Sale of Impure Whisky and May Lead to Prosecutions.

In furtherance of its expressed determination to strictly execute the liquor law, and in support of its recommendation recently made to the Commission on an amendment which shall punish by fine or imprisonment, or both, the seller of adulterated spirits, the excise board has been for some time engaged in a quiet collection of data of a highly important character that will probably have bearing upon their future action in the matter of granting licenses, and serve, also, as an argument before Congress in support of the proposed legislation.

It is reliably ascertained that the board has caused to be procured by purchase a sample of the whisky and gin retailed over a bar at every saloon and other establishment in the city now holding a license. These samples, it is stated, are so numbered and otherwise identified that the particular establishment from which each was obtained can be readily located, by sworn testimony, if necessary, and the proprietor held responsible for whatever may be developed as to the spurious contents of the sample.

The purchases have been quietly made, and the packages will therefore exhibit the average quality of the product of the bar from which it was obtained.

ALL TO BE TESTED. Every sample in the possession of the board will be immediately subjected to a chemical test, and its ingredients carefully ascertained and stated. A record of the analysis will then be annexed to the history of the purchase, and the name of the seller identified.

This course is taken, it is understood, as a part of the plan of the excise board to reform the license system, and is in keeping with its suggestion of an advance in license fees.

Embodied in its recent communication to the Commissioners the board recommended the increase of wholesale fees to $400 and retail fees to $800 per annum, with the explanation that while a higher rate would tend to decrease the number of saloons, it would be a compensation to the interests of the public as well as the saloon-keeper, the plain inference of the suggestion being that, in the estimation of the board, the system would be elevated, and to that extent reformed.

The excise board to-day decided in favor of the application made several months ago by George A. and Harrington Mills for license to keep a bar at the Hotel Grafton, on the corner of Connecticut avenue and De Sales street northwest.

But opposition to the granting of this license has been made by property owners, who were represented by Attorney R. Ross Perry, upon the grounds that a barroom at that point will be highly objectionable and prejudicial to good order.

In his brief, filed several weeks ago, Mr. Perry claimed that among the protesting citizens are James M. Johnston, of Riggs & Co.; Mrs. Wood, the trustees of the W. W. Corcoran Estate; Mrs. Greenwood, Mrs. Shea, and others, most, if not all of whom own property between L and M streets.

Mr. Perry's contention was that the applicants were induced by a bare majority of the residents.

Referring to the evident purpose of the board to induce a number of saloons, Mr. Perry said:

"To begin to issue licenses in a choice residence section is a step backward."

It was also cited that a church is located directly across them street from the Grafton, and that there is a convent immediately south of it, both within the 400 feet limit.

"While the ostensible purpose in this application," said Mr. Perry in his brief, "is to secure the privilege of dispensing liquors to guests in a hotel, the real object, and the objectionable feature, is the establishment of a barroom which can be entered from the street, which will be open under our laws to any noisy and vicious people who choose to enter it."

"This bar is not necessary for hotel purposes, the use of the word 'bar' is a mere disguise."

The granting of the license in this case is evidently due to the opinion lately rendered by Attorney Thomas, who held that established hotels are exempt from the provisions of the four hundred feet restriction.

The Grafton, in all other respects, within the law, and with the attorney's opinion before them releasing the hotel from the restraining clause, there seemed to be no courtship but to introduce the application, and this the board did.

Two transfers of licenses were authorized this morning, as follows: From Harry S. Corcoran to Patrick J. Cook, No. 321 M street; from Lona, Lizzie and Rica Sproles to Frederick Holmes, No. 183 C street northwest.

CONTRACTOR IN TROUBLE. The District Commissioners issued an order yesterday directing the superintendent of county roads to put on a force of men sufficient to complete the work of grading and graveling Pennsylvania avenue extended, in the northeast, and also on Branch avenue, that connects with the first named thoroughfare, the contractor having failed to complete the improvement in a satisfactory manner.

This work was contracted for more than a year ago by W. H. Brady, upon his bid of $10,000, the amount of the appropriation, and with the display of proper energy, it is claimed, the job could have been easily completed in six months.

Mr. Brady's attention has been repeatedly called to the necessity for greater expedition, but he was negligent and seemingly indifferent, and the Commissioners have taken the work out of his hands and will have it completed without further delay.

BUILDING RULES AMENDED. An amendment to the building regulations, promulgated yesterday, applies to hotels and apartment houses the provisions of a previous order prescribing ten feet as the extent of space to be reserved in the rear of the buildings to secure light and ventilation.

Private J. E. Pierce, of the police force, has been fined $20 for neglect of duty. The Commissioners having issued an order to that effect yesterday. The findings of the trial board included a fine of $10, but upon Commissioner Truesdale's recommendation the amount was doubled.

SAYS HE STRUCK HER. Miss Winston's Alleged Assault Released on Personal Bonds.

Night Officer, who was arrested last evening by Officer Sutton, of the First Precinct, charged by Miss Winston, a member of Frederick Ward's company, now playing at the Lafayette Opera House, with assault, and who left $200 collateral for his appearance, was released on his personal bonds this morning and the case postponed until Monday.

Miss Winston, a tall and pretty blonde, has been arrested on U street, where young Fleming and his brother also resided. The young brother, for some reason or other, objected to the attention the other Fleming was paying Miss Winston, and in an altercation, she alleges, he struck her.

Miss Winston swore out the warrant, and was arrested and left his collateral at the station house.

Allowed to Intervene. J. P. Savaris, cigar dealer at No. 505 E street, to-day asked leave to intervene in the libel suits against the steamer City of Richmond. Mr. Savaris' account amounts to $125, which he claims is for goods supplied the vessel's bar.

Three Big Gatherings Soon to Be Held in Washington.

Next Tuesday the third annual convention of the National Spiritualists' Association of the United States and Canada will open its session at the Masonic Temple.

On October 21 the national convention of the churches will open here in the Church of Our Father. This is the first Unitarian conference ever held in this city. There have been present over 2,000 Unitarians at the American conventions of Unitarian churches.

On October 22 the grand officers of the supreme council of the thirty-third degree Scottish Rite Masonry of the United States will open a three days' session here. The assembly will take place at the Scottish Rite temple, on Pennsylvania avenue.

During the latter portion of the month the Washington Christian churches will send delegates to Jerusalem, Hartford, Conn., Md., where the annual meeting of the Missionary Society of the Christian Church will gather delegates from Maryland, Delaware, and the District.

FRANK FINLEY REARRESTED. He Demanded a Jury Trial and Gave Bond for Appearance.

Frank H. Finley, for whom a second warrant was issued day before yesterday, was rearrested last night on his return to town by Officers Dushall and Boyce, of the First Precinct, and left $50 collateral at the station house for his appearance in police court this morning.

Finley was arrested some time since on the charge of disposing of beer after the midnight hour had expired. Counsel at that time agreed to a continuance, and the case was set for October 10. When the case was called day before yesterday neither Mr. Finley nor his counsel were present.

It was then discovered that there had been considerable irregularity in the handling of his case.

The case had been continued, but to fail or collateral, or even personal bonds, had been given for his appearance. Mr. Pugh then said that the case had come up during his absence, and he knew nothing about it, but would now suggest that a new information be filed and another warrant sworn out, which was immediately done. Finley was out of town at the time, and it was afterward discovered that his counsel, Mr. Forrest, was sick.

Mr. Finley appeared before Mr. Pugh this morning about 10 o'clock, demanded a jury trial, and gave bail for $400. Emil G. Schafer went his bond. The case will come up some time next week in Judge Miller's court.
